DEGREES OFFERED: BA, MA, PHD

The undergraduate program offers courses in the four main areas of ancient and medieval history, modern European history, U.S. history, and the histories of Asia, Latin America, and Africa. Faculty interests range from ancient Greek and medieval Jewish history to modern British and German; from areas in American history that include Colonial America, the Old and New South, the Civil War, and intellectual history; and from general global history to specific areas such as East Asian, Caribbean, and Middle Eastern history. The department encourages its majors to acquaint themselves with other humanistic disciplines, such as literature, fine arts, and philosophy; the contributions of political science, sociology, economics, and anthropology also are vital to historical studies. The graduate program, which trains a limited number of carefully selected students, offers studies in U.S., Europe, Atlantic, and African, and graduate certificate in Study of Women and Gender.

DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR BA IN HISTORY

For general university requirements, see Graduation Requirements (pages 14–15). Students majoring in history must complete a minimum of 30 semester hours (10 courses) in history. No less than 18 hours (6 courses) should be taken at Rice. No more than 6 hours (2 courses) may be satisfied by advanced placement (AP) credit. Transfer credit, foreign or domestic, when combined with AP cannot count for more than 12 hours (4 courses). At least 18 hours (6 courses) are required on the 300 or 400 level. Two courses must be chosen from a departmental list of seminars devoted mainly to writing and discussion. In addition, majors are expected to distribute their 10 courses over four fields (AP credit may not be used for these):

Ancient or medieval—1 course minimum

Modern Europe—2 course minimum

United States—2 course minimum

Africa, Asia, Latin America—2 course minimum

Some foreign language proficiency is desirable and the department highly recommends that students contemplating graduate work in history study at least one foreign language in some depth.

Transfer Credit—The Department of History grants transfer credit on a case-by-case basis to enrolled undergraduates (the registrar determines the credit hours). Courses taken at another institution must be the equivalent in required reading, writing, and testing of a Rice history course. It does not have to have an equivalent in the Rice history offerings. For the current procedures to request transfer credit see the department home page <http://history.rice.edu>. Rice students planning to study at a foreign university must also obtain approval from the Office of International Programs.

Honors Program—Qualified undergraduates may enroll for 6 semester hours of directed honors research and writing, completing an honors thesis in their senior year (these 6 hours are in addition to the 30 hours required for the major). Application to the program is required. For current procedures see the department home page, <http://history.rice.edu>. Students must complete both semesters of HIST 403 and 404 to receive credit; the grade for the final project applies to the full 6 hours. Limited financial assistance is available to conduct related research during the summer between the junior and senior year for all students accepted into the Honors Program.

DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR MA AND PHD IN HISTORY

The Rice University graduate program in history is primarily a PhD program. Students who have a BA in history (or its equivalent) from an acceptable institution are eligible to apply to the PhD program. Although many successful candidates to the PhD program have an MA or other advanced degree, advanced study is not a requirement for admission. Graduate study is offered in U.S., European, intellectual, and other areas of history. Further information is available on request from the department. For general university requirements, see Graduate Degrees (pages 57-58).

The department awards graduate tuition waivers and fellowship stipends, within the limits of available funds, to qualified PhD candidates with demonstrated ability. University funding is not available for masters program study only. All graduate students in the history department are expected to participate in the professional activities of the department as part of their training. These include, but are not limited to, assisting with the Journal of Southern History or the Papers of Jefferson Davis and serving as research assistants or teaching assistants for department members. Insofar as possible, these assignments are kept consistent with the interests of the students.

MA Program—The department gives priority to applicants for the PhD. Completion of the MA degree usually takes two years; no more than three years may elapse between graduate admission and the completion of the degree unless the department Graduate Committee approves an extension. MA degrees are awarded in two ways: (1) completion of one year of course work (24 credit hours) and a thesis written and defended in an oral examination during the second year; and (2) completion of two years of course work (48 credit hours), normally including at least 2 seminar research papers.

PhD Program—Doctoral candidates must prepare themselves in three fields of history: two in their major area of concentration, whether European, U.S., or other history, and a third in an area outside of that concentration (e.g., if the major area is European history, the third field must be in U.S. or other non-European history, and if the major area is U.S. history, the third field must be in European or other non-U.S. history, and so on). Students who wish to pursue a third field in an area outside the department should petition the Graduate Committee by the end of their second semester.

The requirements for completing the degree will be administered as flexibly as possible within the bounds of the general university regulations. These requirements state that the PhD degrees “will be awarded after successful completion of at least 90 semester hours of advanced study and an original investigation reported in an approved thesis.” Passing the qualifying exam and receiving approval of a dissertation prospectus allows the student to apply for formal admission to candidacy for the PhD degree.

For the PhD, candidates must:

- Prepare themselves thoroughly in three examination fields.
- Take 8 graduate seminars, including Introduction to Doctoral Studies.
- Pass reading examinations in the principal language of research (unless it is English) and one other language (not English).
- Perform satisfactorily on written and oral examinations. For students entering with a BA, those examinations will normally be taken before the beginning of the fifth semester and no later than the beginning of the sixth semester. Students entering with an MA may take their examinations earlier, with departmental approval.
- Complete a dissertation presenting the results of original research.
- Defend the thesis in a public oral examination.
